JUSTICE BEGINS HER WORK

No Information Has Yet Been Filed Against Clara Allen.

HER CASE MAY BE REACHED THIS TERM

County Attorney Kaley Begins Business by Arraigning Twelve Prisoners-Cad McGuire Pleads Guilty and Gets Three Years.

The criminal work of the district court was fairly started yesterday, and County Attorney Kaley made his first appearance as a public prosecutor. One of the most important cases on hand is that of Clara Allen, who had dropped out of public notice for several weeks. She is charged with perjury in falsely implicating Berlin and Hayes in the death of Mayor Miller of South Omaha. She was unable to give bonds and has been confined in the county jail, almost forgotten. It was supposed that her case would come up early in this term. but the county attorney has not yet filed his Information. He stated yesterday that this would be done soon, and he hopes to reach trial at this term of court.

Prisoners Arraigned. The county jail gave up ten men and one woman for arraignment on various criminal charges yesterday morning, and every one of them pleaded not guilty. Charles McDowell, a former collector for the Cady-Gray Lumber company, was the first man to face Judge Keysor, who now has charge of the criminal docket. The information in the case alleges that last summer McDowell collected and appropriated the sum of $53.50 to his own use and private

It was alleged that George Lindell broke into the residence of J. G. Kennedy and stole a lot of jewelry and clothing, but George declared that it was a mistake on the part of the man who swore to the information, be-sides being a case of mistaken identity. John Haley and Howard Hammond were charged in the same information with Lin-dell and stuck to the same story.

Dick Creole, a colored man who has a bad reputation, was charged with having as-saulted Charles Bell with a razor. Dick entered a general denial by saying that he was in Council Bluffs when the carving act took place.
George Miller had to answer to having stolen a lot of clothing and a gold watch from the house of Thomas Emminger. Edna White, a woman of color, was called up to deny that she had been a party to tak-ing the sum of $25 from the person of Charles Johnson, a granger from Sarpy county. David Buskirk was accused of having forged and passed a $1.30 bank check.

Ed Fitsgerald, a bright-looking young man.

Answered to the charge of having stolen $67 worth of goods from one of the cars of the Union Pacific company. He was arrested and tried on the same charge in Sarpy county, where the jury failed to agree.

Theodore Erick, the man who led Sheriff Bennett such a wild chase through a cornfield in the vicinity of Fremont last fall, was fleid in the vicinity of Fremont last fall, was accused of having stolen $470 in checks from Henry Leiman, a merchant at Bennington. W. E. Thilo, a sickly looking young fellow, was accused of defrauding Woodhead Bros.

The charge is this: Early in the winter he went to the defendants, who are live stock commission men of South Omaha, and represented that he had some cattle on the sented that he had some cattle on the market. He showed them a carload of fat steers which he claimed had been brought in from the country. The sale was made and the young man walked out of the yards with $300 in his pocket, but he did not go far before he was arrested and now he is in the court to answer.

In the afternoon "Cad" McGuire, a mem ber of the gang of robbers which struck ter ror to the North Side citizens during the early winter, was arraigned and pleaded guilty to the charge of burglary. He was sentenced to a term of three years.

against W. J. Conneil was "settled" once more yesterday. The contention is for the possession of two and a half acres of land in the Griffin & Smith addition, southwest of Hanscom park. At the last term of court Judge Ogden issued an order temporarily restraining Connell from interfering with Manning's occupancy. The court yesterday dissolved the injunction, finding that Contell was legally entitled to the property. Peter Bierback has sued the Omaha Brewing association for $21,850. He alleges that until a few months ago he was the owner and operator of the Eagle house. At that time he alleges that he owed Peter Ihler the sum of $2,750, which debt was sold to the defendant. Then the defendant sued him and sold all of the property for a song. Now Mr. Bierback propossession of two and a half acres of land in

Miss Lotta Paynter Assaulted in Her Own

MAKES A BRAVE FIGHT FOR HER HONOR

Knocked Senseless and Apparently Left for Dead-The Villain's Purpose Ceft Unaccomplished - Presumed to Have Sought Revenge.

Miss Lotta Paynter, living at 1102 South Eleventh street, was assaulted by an unknown man about 5 o'clock Monday afternoon, and though the villain was frightened from his purpose the victim suffered a neryous shock which at one time threatened to prove fatal.

Miss Paynter is a rather pretty young ady, 17 years of age, who lives with her brother and widowed mother at the address named. Monday morning she went out with her mother to call on some friends or Park avenue, where they spent the day. On the way home Mrs. Paynter remained up town to order some groceries and the young lady returned home alone. Just as the clock in the kitchen was striking 5 she heard what she thought was her mother's voice calling to her from the back yard. The back steps were covered with ice, and thinking that her mother needed help in climbing up she ran to assist her. She had no sooner reached the porch than she was seized from schind by a man, who threw one arm around her waist and placing his left hand over her mouth lifted her from her feet and carried her toward the coal shed, which stood just

She Struggled Bravely.

Although large for her age, Miss Paynter has been a partial invalid for some time, and she was nearly powerless in the grasp of her assailant. She attempted to scream, but the villain grasped her by the throat and threatened to kill her if she uttered a sound. By this time her assailant had forced her into the coal shed, and realizing that her honor was at stake the girl struggled bravely against the superior strength of her oppo-

The brute then grasped her by the hair and threw her against the coal bin with such and threw her against the coal bin with such force that she was rendered insensible and knew no more until she recovered to find herself lying in her own room with her mother bending auxiously over her.

It was just a quarter of an hour after the man called Miss Paynter into the back yard that her mother returned and on going out after a scuttle of coal found her dearther.

after a scuttle of coal found her daughter lying unconscious on the floor of the shed. Help was summoned and the insensible girl was brought into the house and restora-tives applied. It was a long time before she opened her eyes and she remained unconscious most of the time until 10 o'clock. Besides the nervous shock she had suffered she was half frozen through lying in the shed when the thermometer was several legrees below zero, and had she not been discovered just when she was the chances are that she would never have regained con-

Evidently the rascal who perpetrated the assault believed that he had killed her when assant believed that he had killed her when she fainted and made his escape without any further effort to carry out his purpose. He was a tall man with no beard except a mus-tache and was evidently upwards of 30 years old. He answers the description of a man who has been noticed loading around a tough saloon most of the time during the winter.

Her Condition Critical.

Miss Paynter was somewhat better last evening, but her condition was still serious and her physician feared that it would be several weeks before she fully recovered from her adventure. She says that she recognized her assailant as a man who had been refused work by her father before his death and whom she has seen watching her several times since. Two years ago they lived in Kountze place and her father made a contract with a man named Barker to do some grading and make other improvements about the house. The man who assaulted her yesterday she recog-nized as a fellow who came around and at-tempted to get the contract, but was refused. He made some vague threats at the time, but the incident was soon forgotten.

As she left the house in the morning Miss Paynter saw the man standing on the corner. He stared at her in an insulting manner which she noticed at the time and she is positive that it was the same rascal who made the villian-ous assault of the afternoon. The only theory which the family have to offer is that the fellow was offended at the refusal of Mr. Paynter to let him do his work and took oc-casion to get even by the assault upon the daughter after her paynes protector had daughter after her natural protector had passed away.

The brute bad evidently carefully planned The brute bad evidently carefully planned his work. He had seen both mother and daughter go away in the morning and the latter return alone. He knew that she was alone in the house and that there was no one to prevent him from carrying out his devilish plan, and but for the girl's heroic resistance he would have undoubtedly succeeded in his revenge. He imitated the voice of Mrs. Paynter so successfully that the girl was completely deceived and did not realize what awaited her until she found herself struggling in the lascivious clutches of her brutal assailant. The people in the vicinity are very indignant at the bold crime, and several of them proclaimed their willingness to assist at a hanging bee if the brute was caught.
